Outcome	After The Workshop, Students were able to : <ul style="list-style-type: none"><li>· Implement a given algorithm as a Python Computer Program.</li><li>· Explain what a given Python Program does.</li><li>· Use Library Software for building a Graphical User Interface, Web Application, Or Mathematical Software.</li></ul>

Department of Mathematics, Mar Thoma College for Women, Perumbavoor organized a two-day workshop for students and faculty on “Numerical Analysis with Python 3” on 3rd and 4th January 2020. The workshop was conducted in collaboration with Kerala Mathematical Association (KMA). Dr. Sunny Kuriakose, Dean of FISAT & Academic Secretary of KMA, who inaugurated the workshop, also motivated the students with his speech and explained that these kinds of workshops are beneficial for their upcoming placements and technical knowledge. Dr. Gigi George, Principal-in-charge applauded and supported the efforts taken by the Mathematics Department towards the betterment of the technical aspects of the students. Dr. Paul Issac, General Secretary, KMA extended his support to the organizing team towards making the workshop successful. Ms. Shalitha Jacob and Ms.Emilda Sebastian, staff coordinators, took efforts towards managing the workshop, hospitality for the esteemed delegates and the resource person, and other logistics towards the smooth conduction of the workshop. Dr. Anupama P., IQAC Co-ordinator, also extended her support. Other teachers of the department and students also gave their commendable contribution.

The workshop was attended by 43 students (15 students of Mar Thoma College for Women, Perumbavoor and 28 external students) and 6 faculty members. The resource person for the workshop was Dr. Sreeraj R, Head, Department of Computer Science and Engineering, Royal College of Engineering and Technology, Akkikavu, Thrissur.

After the inaugural ceremony, the content flow, objectives and outcomes of the workshop were discussed. In the first session of day one, history of Python programming language, set up of Python programming environment for windows, variables and data types, operations in Python were explained. The second session of day one of the workshop was the installation of Anaconda software by the students themselves. Also inbuilt data structures in Python and some complicated concepts were discussed which will help students while developing their own code and further, this may help them while seeking placement in software domain.

In the first session of day two, functions were explained. In addition, a few coding challenges were given to students. An external python library ‘Turtle’ was demonstrated. The objective behind the introduction of Turtle was to analyse some advanced in-depth concepts in an interactive manner. After explaining turtle library, how to make our own library and package in Python were described to the students. In the succeeding session, one of the most important concepts in Python, object-oriented programming was studied in detail. Classes and objects were defined by relating these to real life examples. After covering all the basic and advanced concepts of Python programming language, two useful open source libraries Numpy and Sympy were explained, which are essential for advanced mathematical operations, representing mathematical functions and data in different ways. At the concluding part of the workshop students were given a Python project to code and execute at runtime, followed by a session where students were asked to speak and express their experience of the workshop and what they learned during it. The two-day “Numerical Analysis with Python 3” workshop ended on a successful note, along with distribution of participation certificates to each registered participant.
